British Encircle Bremen And Hamburg

FIELD-MARSHAL MONTGOMERY yesterday extended his battle-front on the Elbe by clearing the important Goehrde Forest area west of the river and created a continuous line with the U.S. 9th Army from the south to the gates of Hamburg.

He has linked all his forces on the northern front between Hamburg and Bremen The British 2nd Army entered the suburbs of Hamburg on Saturday.

British tanks and guns are "sealing off" Hamburg, and infantry forces stand one mile from the suburbs of Harburg, to the south and west. North and north-east of Bremen the German positions are deeply indented.

British troops, tightening the ring round Bremen, entered the outskirts of Achim, eight miles south-east of the port. An armoured division, pushing south from the Hamburg - Bremen autobahn, 30 miles east of Bremen, entered the eastern and southern parts of the "key" town of Rotenburg.

Reconnaissance patrols yesterday found the township of Buxtehude north-west of Hamburg) abandoned by the Germans, but Zeven, guarding the withdrawal route north from Bremen, is still strongly held.

By taking Buxtehude the British captured the district H.Q. of the German Navy.

Yesterday's Allied communiqué announced that east of the Ems river Papenburg was entered.

"North-east of Brunswick," it added, "we have pocketed the enemy force which counter-attacked us on April 19th. Enemy swimmers failed in an attempt to blow up a bridge leading to our bridgehead across the Elbe river and some of the swimmers were captured.

"Farther south our armoured forces entered Dessau. North-east of Leipzig our armour occupied Korstitz and our troops are mopping-up along the Mulde river.

"In Czechoslovakia we cleared Asch and, advancing to the east, reached a point five miles north of the town. Mopping-up in Nuremberg has been completed. More than 14,000 Allied prisoners were liberated in the area.

"A four-mile gap remained in the link around Stuttgart, with approaching columns at Kircheim and Unterensingen. A score of towns were taken in the area as we drove towards Stuttgart from all sides.

"South of Stuttgart our units thrust 18 miles to Donaueschingen, on the head waters of the Danube, 10 miles north of the German-Swiss border. Between the Rhine and Nuremberg more than 11,000 prisoners were taken in 24 hours. Allied forces in the west captured 46,334 prisoners on Friday.

The German communiqué yesterday said that counter-attacks by German Panzer Grenadiers hit the flank of the Allied forces, which penetrated into Harburg and inflicted high losses on them. "British attempts to cross the Elbe at Wittenberghe and Tangermunde were smashed," the communiqué added. "In the Dessau-Bitterfeld sector swaying battles continued. Attacking with several divisions, the Americans were able to make further gains of ground only foot by foot."

General de Tassigny announced last night that French troops had occupied Stuttgart, and, after crossing the Danube, had reached the Swiss frontier.

U.S. 3rd Army troops drove 11 miles eastward yesterday and entered Wieden, 31 miles south-east of Bayreuth.

Disastrous Floods in Holland

Large districts of Holland west of the Zuider Zee now face a threat of flooding following the opening by the Germans of the sluice-gates at Ijmuiden, according to Dutch radio reports.

Air photos yesterday showed for the first time the full extent of the disastrous flooding of north-western Holland, says Reuter.

What a week ago was a 50,000-acre belt of rich farm-land is now a great black sheet of water, sixteen feet deep. Not a house, tree or road is to be seen. No living thing could have survived this torrent.

In this area lived 15,000 farmers. The region was won from the sea in 1930, and the planned settlement that went on for fifteen years has been erased in fifteen minutes. The waters of the Zuider Zee are beating once more against the old sea wall.

A Dutch officer said yesterday: "They are capable of putting us back almost to where we were in the year 1000 AD. when the first dykes were built. Each new flood eliminates additional food producing areas."

Stalin May Be At The Front

Marshal Stalin, as Supreme Commander-in-Chief of the Red Army, may have taken over personal command in the field of all the Soviet armies on the Berlin front.

This development, which would mean that Marshal Stalin himself is to-day before the German capital, is suggested by a reorganisation in the Soviet Command, which Moscow official announcements indicate may have taken place.—(Reuter.)

U.S. Congressmen To Visit German Camps

A delegation of six Senators, six Representatives and 17 publishers and editors is shortly leaving by air for Germany at General Eisenhower's request to inspect concentration camps. They will report back, and their findings will be made known to the San Francisco Conference.

RUSSIANS FIGHTING IN BERLIN STREETS

Reported Link-Up With American Forces

[Reuter and Associated Press Messages.]

RED ARMY FORCES HAVE FOUGHT THEIR WAY INTO THE SUBURBS OF BERLIN, MOSCOW AND GERMAN REPORTS STATED YESTERDAY, AND THE RUSSIANS ARE STATED TO BE ADVANCING TOWARDS THE HEART OF THE CAPITAL.

Driving forward under a great hail of fire from the heaviest mass of artillery employed in this war, the Red Army battered its way forward, and Soviet shells are raining down on "key" targets all over Berlin almost without interruption. Every salvo is being directed at a railway station, prominent public building, or other important target, with special attention for the Unter Den Linden area.

Soviet troops, advancing in the direction of Unter Den Linden from the north-east, crossed the Ringbahn circular railway, which runs round the city's administrative centre.

The Russian advance is directed in a converging move on the heart of the capital from points north of the Spree. The southernmost of the two Soviet storm groups is reported to be pushing through side streets towards the Schlesischer station, two miles from Unter Den Linden.

Most observers at Allied Supreme H.Q. believe that a junction of the U.S. 9th Army and the Red Army has already been made somewhere round Dresden, as announced by the German radio, but it has not yet been officially announced by Supreme H.Q.

Red Star reported that Berlin was being entered from the south by cavalry, tanks and infantry. Heavy fighting is raging against the great autobahn which circles Berlin and it has been pierced at several sectors.

The Germans have converted many a.a. guns into anti-tank weapons along the autobahn and they are firing point-blank at Russian tanks.

Another Moscow report said that Soviet commanders are looking down on the streets of Berlin from observation posts in the suburbs.

The German Radio reported that "strong Russian tank spearheads have reached Glienicke, a suburb of Berlin."

The Glienicke district is on the north-western side, about eight miles from the heart of the capital. It is an industrial area, and the Russian penetration there makes Berlin's encirclement about three-quarters complete.

The Germans announced on Saturday night that the Soviets had swung round to the south-west in the neighbourhood of Potsdam.

"Many units of the Berlin Volkssturm had their baptism of fire when Soviet forces pushed to the defence belt of the capital with massed forces," said a German home service broadcast. "One Volkssturm group encircled near Landsberg refused to capitulate and fought to the last man."

Battles are being fought in a pall of smoke so dense, says Reuter, that Soviet transport drivers are having to switch on their headlamps during the day to pick their way forward. The Germans had prepared considerable forces to defend their capital.

The attack on Berlin is actually two-fold. While some formations are fighting straight into the heart of the capital, others are carrying out an encirclement move.

Powerful Soviet mobile columns have already left the main battle in the eastern and northern outskirts far behind as they push out across the country towards Spandau and Charlottenburg, west of the capital.

Other units driving south and south-east are pushing through Berlin's lakeland, aiming at Potsdam.

These communication arteries which could still supply Berlin are thus being denied to the Germans one by one, while the Red Air Force is hammering at every batch of reserves attempting to reach the capital.

In the south Kottbus is partially encircled and completely by-passed and the Red Army is heading past the town to the Elbe.

Heavy battles took place in Berlin between big Russian Stalin and Sherman tanks and German panzers, self-propelled guns and anti-tank units along the Landsberger road which leads north-west into Berlin.

Bitter battles were also reported along roads leading eastward out of the capital.

Farther to the south the Russians brought up big guns opposite the Pianter Wald and began shelling the outskirts of the Tempelhof airfield six miles to the west.

Waves of Soviet Ilyushin-10 and bombers kept up incessant attacks on Tempelhof, and the aerodrome is now of little use to the Luftwaffe, which, however, is giving sharp battle to the Russians.

The message, which reported operations north-west of Berlin, said that Soviet tank columns were astride a group of roads and railways in this sector.

The Soviets introduced cavalry into the fighting north of Berlin, despatches reporting that these horsemen have by-passed captured Bernau and are heading westwards. The entire garrison of Bernau was wiped out.

RUSSIAN PACT WITH LUBLIN

MARSHAL STALIN, speaking after signing the Soviet-Polish 20-year treaty of friendship and mutual assistance on Saturday, said that the treaty had a great international significance, says Reuter.

"We now have a united front between our two countries from the Baltic to the Carpathians against German aggression," he said.

"It can now be said with certainty that German aggression is doomed from the East. There is no doubt that if this barrier from the East is completed by a barrier from the West, erected by our Western Allies, German aggression will be nipped in the bud, and will not be able to develop easily.

"For this reason it is not surprising that the freedom-loving nations are waiting impatiently for the conclusion of this treaty. They know that this treaty signifies a consolidation of the single front of the United Nations against the common enemy in Europe. This is why I do not doubt that our allies in the West will welcome our treaty.

"The significance of the present agreement lay in the fact, he said, that it established a solid foundation for replacing the old unfriendly relations with ties of alliance and friendship. In the course of two world wars the Germans succeeded in using Polish territory as a corridor for aggression in the East, and as a springboard for attack on the Soviet Union.

The Treaty signed by Stalin and the Prime Minister and Foreign Minister in the Lublin Provisional Government, M. Osubka-Morawski, in the Kremlin on Saturday consisted of eight articles. Russia and Poland pledged themselves to "continue jointly with all the United Nations to struggle against Germany until final victory, undertaking to render each other military and other assistance by every means at their disposal."

"In the event of one of the high contracting parties in the post-war period finding itself involved in hostilities with Germany who may have resumed her agressive policy, or with any other State which may have united with Germany, directly or in any other form in such a war, the other high contracting party will immediately render the contracting party involved in hostilities military or other assistance and support by every means at its disposal."

Article 5 says: "The high contracting parties are not to conclude without mutual consent, an armistice with any State, other than Hitler Government, or with any other Government in Germany which encroaches or might encroach upon the independence, territorial integrity or security of either of the high contracting parties."

Each party undertakes not to conclude any alliance, and not to take part in any coalition directed against the other party, and they will collaborate in a spirit of friendship with a view to the further development and consolidation of economic and cultural ties between the two countries, and assist each other in the economic rehabilitation of both countries.

The Agreement will remain valid for twenty years, says the last article. Should neither of the parties give notice of its desire to terminate the Treaty twelve calendar months before the expiration of the 20-year period the Treaty will remain valid for a further five years, and thus each time until one of the parties gives notice twelve months before the expiration of the current five-year period of its intention to denounce the Treaty.—(Reuter.)

Butchers' Problems Increasing

Gas rationing has added another to the many problems with which Dublin butchers have to contend, a member of the trade told an Irish Times reporter. Mutton is unusually scarce, and, as housewives are buying loin chops to the exclusion of nearly all other meat, butchers are finding it almost impossible, because of the gas rationing, to dispose of boiling pieces, which take a long time to cook.

Owing to the increase in the tillage area, feeding for sheep is scarce, and this, coupled with the severe weather in January, has reduced the killing weight by about 10lb. in 70.

Sheep prices reached a peak two years ago, but if the present scarcity continues the scale of prices may have to be reconsidered. Retail prices have just about doubled since 1939.

There is also a shortage of finished beef, and it is understood that the Victuallers' Association will ask the Minister for Agriculture to pay a subsidy of 5/- per cwt. to encourage the finishing of cattle and have them available for slaughter in the scarce period of March, April and May.

Missing Man's Body Found In Liffey

The body of Chief Engineer J. Elliott, the 44-year-old Belfast man, who had not been seen since he left his ship, the s.s. Margaret Lockington, at the east end of the North Wall, Dublin, on April 6th last, was recovered from the Alexandra Basin yesterday. The body was first seen by three L.D.F. men in a boat, who, assisted by the Port Control officers and Sergeant John Murray of Store street station, brought the body ashore and had it removed to the City Morgue. Mr. Elliott's home was at Portallo street, Belfast.

French Musicians For Dublin

Madame Monique Haas, pianist, and Madame Suzanne Peignot, singer, both from Paris, are expected in Dublin this week. Accompanied by the Radio Eireann Orchestra, Madame Haas will broadcast on Thursday a performance of Mozart's Concerto in D minor. On Friday, in a song and piano recital, Mesdames Haas and Peignot will perform works by Rameau, Scarlatti, Rousset and Faure. "Premier Prix" of the Conservatoire, Madame Haas has given many concerts in Europe and in America. Madame Peignot is renowned for her interpretation of modern music.

Co. Dublin Farm Fire.—Between 40 and 50 tons of hay were damaged in a fire which occurred yesterday in a shed attached to the residence of Mr. Bernard Rahill, Newtown House, Leixlip. The shed which contained the hay was also considerably damaged. Dublin Fire Brigade prevented the fire from spreading to adjoining outoffices.

Goebbels Warns Against Showing White Flag

DR. GOEBBELS and his family, together with his colleagues, are remaining in Berlin, the defence of which has been entrusted to a Lieutenant-General. Both announcements were made on Saturday by Dr. Goebbels, in a speech over the Berlin internal relay system, issued by the German News Agency yesterday.

"The self-sacrifical efforts of our gallant divisions and Volkssturm men have been unable to prevent the Soviets from reaching the outer defence lines of the capital," the Gauleiter of Berlin said. Berlin, he added, had become a front line city, and certain measures were necessary. Civilians must obey instructions by the civil or military authorities without question.

"Curious looking-on is not allowed. The streets must be kept free of pedestrians; and, above all, of playing children. Armament works, utility plants and administrative departments must continue their work. Works guards will be responsible for the external and internal security of the factories Agents provocateurs or foreigners who are insubordinate are to be arrested immediately; or, better still, rendered harmless. Criminal elements who attempt to spread unrest must be severely dealt with at all costs.

"Houses or apartments which show white flags have no claim to protection or help by the community and will be dealt with accordingly. In such cases the occupants will be held responsible. Local party leaders must keep watch with iron severity and must act accordingly. Such houses would become the disease-carriers in the body of our city. The fight against them must be ruthless.

"Many thousand tank barriers, barricades, road blocks and earthworks have been erected round Berlin, and the capital has been put on a footing of the greatest defence preparedness.

"Lieutenant-General Reymann, holder of the Oak Leaves to the Iron Cross, has been charged with the military defence of the capital. All soldiers and Volkssturm men may have confidence in his proven skill without reserve.

"I and my colleagues are, of course, remaining in Berlin. My wife and my children are also here, and will remain I shall stimulate the capital's defence with every means at my disposal. The onslaught will and must be broken at the walls of our city."

End Of State Case In Clare Murder Charge

The case for the second prosecution in the Central Criminal Court of Thomas McMahon, Ballyvacrinan, Kilrush, Co. Clare, for the murder of his widowed 63-year-old mother-in-law Mrs. Mary Keating, on January 15th, 1944, ended on Saturday last.

Superintendent J. Dawson said that on June 6th, 1944, he arrested McMahon and charged him with the murder of Mrs. Keating. In a written statement McMahon said: "Well, I am innocent of the charge. You know as well as I do that I am innocent of the charge."

When the State case concluded, Mr. M. Binchy, S.C., who, with Sir John Esmonde, S.C., and Mr. O. Keane (instructed by Mr. I. M. Houlihan, Ennis), appears for McMahon, asked Mr. Justice Davitt to direct the jury that there was no evidence that would justify them in convicting the prisoner of murder, and, therefore, to acquit the prisoner.

Mr. Justice Davitt ruled that the case must be decided by the jury.

The defence then opened, and the further hearing was adiourned until this morning.

Mrs. O'Dwyer (Dublin), the only woman competitor, studies the board during her match with Mr. A. H. Summers (Belfast), whom she defeated in the Dublin v. Belfast chess match in Dublin.

SWISS radio, quoting an official announcement of the Swiss Federal Council, said yesterday that the Council had decided on the "total closing of the German-Swiss frontier."

COMMUNICATIONS CUT

Telephone and telegraph communication between Sweden and Germany, was virtually broken off at 6.50 a.m. yesterday.

LIAISON OFFICERS

CANDIDATES FOR PRESIDENCY

BY OUR POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT

THE selection of Mr. Sean T. O'Kelly by the Fianna Fail Party in the Dail as a candidate for the Presidency will come before the National Executive of the organisation at its meeting to-day for confirmation, of which no doubt prevails.

During last week-end rumours of a contest gained circulation, and I was informed that the names of two people, who are not connected with politics, were being regarded as candidates for the office.

It will not be necessary for Mr. O'Kelly to resign his membership of the Dail in order to be nominated for the Presidency. He will be so if elected, as the Constitution prescribes in Article 12 that the President shall not be a member of either House of the Oireachtas. His election would also mean that he will have to vacate the office of Tanaiste.

In the event of the office of Tanaiste becoming vacant, Mr. Sean Lemass, Minister for Industry and Commerce, is likely to be chosen as Mr. O'Kelly's successor.

Support of the candidature of Dr. P. McCartan for the Presidency was pledged by the executive at yesterday's North Cork convention of the Old I.R.A. Comrades' Association, held in Mallow.

U.S. Reply To Eire's Message Of Sympathy

The following is a copy of a telegram received by the Taoiseach from the American Secretary of State:—

"The Hon. Eamon de Valera, Prime Minister of Ireland.

"The President is deeply grateful for your message sent on behalf of the Government, Dail Eireann and the people of Ireland. It is comforting to know that the Irish people looked upon President Roosevelt as a great man and a noble leader, and that they sympathise with the American people in their great loss.

"Signed,

"Edward R. Stettinius, jnr.
"Secretary of State."

Tribute To English Trade Union Officials

The split in the trade union movement was discussed at the annual meeting of the Grocers' Union yesterday, at which Mr. W. Breen said that he knew that they were anxious to have a report on their relations with other unions. He was glad to say that they were as friendly as ever.

The trade union movement, he said, faced a crisis, and, while they were not affiliated to the Irish Trade Union Congress, they were deeply concerned about the present position.

Mr. Breen paid a tribute to the leaders of the English unions in Ireland, who had served the country, and the workers. They were men of the highest honour and integrity; but this was not a question of personal finess. The issue was that, in common with all other Irish unions, they must take a firm stand on the question of national independence for the trade union movement.

A resolution was adopted to the effect that they welcomed the formation of a body representing Irish trade unions, with their headquarters in Ireland, and with this end in view they recommended that the incoming Executive Committee should apply for affiliation when such a body was formed.

Delegates from Dublin, Cork, Cobh, Carlow, Dundalk, Tralee, Wexford, Galway, Tuam, Mallow and Passage West attended a special conference of the Irish Engineering Industrial Union in Dublin yesterday, when the decision of the Council of Irish Trade Unions to withdraw from the Irish Trade Union Congress and establish a Congress of trade unions with headquarters in Ireland was endorsed.

Few Law Clerks Receive Bonus

The Executive Committee of the Irish Union of Distributive Workers and Clerks has been urged to take whatever steps may be considered necessary to have effect given to the terms of the Order, awarding a bonus of 11s. per week, to law clerks and typists, and 5s. 6d. to juveniles, retrospective to July 26th last.

This decision was reached at the annual general meeting of the law clerks' and typists' section of the union. The award was sanctioned by the Minister for Industry and Commerce on December 4th last, and a reporter was informed by an official of the union that only a few solicitors in Dublin and Dun Laoghaire have paid the bonus.

Fourteen Suburbs Captured

THE capture of many suburbs in Berlin was announced in the Soviet communiqué late last night. The communiqué stated:

"During April 22nd our central group of armies continued to fight offensive battles in the Dresden and Berlin directions.

"In the Dresden direction our troops occupied a number of places, including Fürstenwalde and Bischofswerder.

"According to preliminary reports, in fighting between April 17th and 22nd, our troops took more than 10,000 prisoners in this area. They also captured 96 planes and more than 150 tanks and self-propelled guns.

"In the Berlin direction our troops captured the towns of Biesental, Kalksberge, Kleinickenbeck, Friedrichshagen and Fürstenwalde, and the following suburbs of Berlin:—Glinnicke, Lubart, Blankenberge, Rosenthal, Butehholz, Karow, Blankenburg, Weissensee, Markow, Biesdorf, Malzdorf, Fichtenau, Wilhelmshaven, Schoeneiche.

"According to preliminary data, in this area our troops took more than 13,000 prisoners. They also captured 60 planes, more than 100 tanks and self-propelled guns, and more than 500 guns.

"North of Vienna our troops continued their offensive, in the course of which they occupied more than 30 places, including Neudorf and Altenmarkt."—(Reuter.)

Near Heart of the Capital

The Soviet communiqué shows that the Red Army is within five miles of the Brandenburger Tor, the very heart of Berlin. Rosental, due north of Berlin, is on a road which leads straight down to the Brandenburger Tor, five miles away.

A.P. quoted a report that a machine-gun battle was being fought at the Stettiner railway station and that Soviet troops were approaching the Templehof area.

"The speed of the Russian advance south of Berlin is increasing hourly," said a Soviet war reporter.

M. MOLOTOV ARRIVES IN WASHINGTON

M. MOLOTOV arrived in Washington by air last night for an urgent "Big Three" Conference, preliminary to the United Nations' meeting at San Francisco.

He was greeted on arrival by Mr. Stettinius, U.S. Secretary of State, and by British, Russian and other American officials. He arrived in a U.S. Army Transport Command plane, after a flight across Siberia and Canada.

President Truman received M. Molotov and Mr. Stettinius at 8.30 (local time), at Blair House, where he is staying while the White House is being got ready.

Yesterday afternoon President Truman received Mr. Eden, British Foreign Secretary; Mr. Stettinius, Mr. Averill Harriman, U.S. Ambassador in Moscow, and Mr. James Dunn, U.S. Assistant Secretary of State for European Affairs.

The vital meeting of the "Big Four" Foreign Ministers is expected to begin very soon.

Mr. Eden conferred on Saturday with Mr. Stettinius and Mr. Grew, U.S. Under-Secretary of State, for nearly 80 minutes in "a useful discussion on a number of matters." He also saw M. Bidault, French Foreign Minister.

General Smuts said yesterday in San Francisco that the delegates to the United Nations' Conference must draft more than a treaty. "We must write a true confession of faith," he said. "Our race has reached the limit of human endurance. If we fail here the world may be psychologically shocked beyond repair."

Post-War Building Supplies

Very little timber can be expected from Canada and the United States to relieve building problems here and in Britain, according to the Irish Builder and Engineer, which quotes from a report recently made by a subcommittee of the Royal Institute of British Architects.

It would be wise, the report states, to make preparations on the basis of a minimum use of timber in post-war housing.

The Timber Development Association, however, has stated that supplies of timber will increase very rapidly after the war, and that there will be no serious shortage.

The report of the R.I.B.A. Committee also states that, generally speaking, brick supplies will not hinder house production in the first years after the war. No difficulties are likely to be experienced in obtaining roofing tiles, asphalt roofing, roofing felt, sanitary fittings, plumbing units, structural steel, pipes and taps.

Research is now being made into the possibility of absorbing the aluminium industry in the production of doors, windows, etc., the report says, but little is definitely known about the prospects, and the use of aluminium may prove expensive.

ALLIES 20 MILES BEYOND BOLOGNA

FIFTH Army troops, pursuing the retreating Germans, have pressed on 20 miles N.-W. of Bologna. They are believed to be past Modena, on the main road to Milan, states Reuter's correspondent at Allied Italian H.Q.

Troops of the Eighth Army, who entered Bologna simultaneously with the Fifth Army on Saturday, were yesterday joined in heavy battle, seven miles N.-E. of the city, after crossing the Idice River.

Armoured and infantry columns of both Armies are driving on towards the Po River, according to a communiqué issued last night from Allied Mediterranean H.Q. Fifth Army troops have forced crossings over the Secchia and Panaro Rivers. Other Fifth Army troops are closing in on Modena, and the Eighth Army are within two miles of Ferrara.

An earlier communiqué stated: "British troops of the 8th Army continued their advance on Ferrara and reached Monte Santo. Farther west progress has been made along the north bank of the Reno. Other Eighth Army troops continued to compress the fleeing enemy into the bend of the Reno north of Bologna, and have captured Mezzolara and Granarolo Dell' Emilia.

"Our air forces attacked these enemy columns, but unfavourable weather limited the effectiveness of their action. Allied patrols have entered Pieve Pelafo. On the west coast opposition continues.

"Escorted heavy bombers on Saturday bombed marshalling yards in Southern Germany and Austria, while fighter-bombers dive-bombed railways in the Rattenburg, Rosenheim and Munich areas.

BRIDGES BOMBED

"Medium bombers attacked Po River crossings, road and rail bridges, and a marshalling yard in north and north-east Italy. Night intruder bombers were active over the Po River crossings and against motor transport in the central Po Valley.

"Rocket-firing aircraft of the Balkan Air Force attacked shipping off the Istrian Peninsula and enemy concentrations north of the peninsula, while other aircraft bombed marshalling yards and troop movements in Northern Yugo-Slavia. Nine Allied planes are missing."

Air Battle Off Scottish Coast

A German strike force, consisting of 18 torpedo bombers, believed to be on their way to Britain to attack shipping, was intercepted on Saturday by a large force of R.A.F. Coastal Command Mosquitos returning from an anti-shipping reconnaissance in the Kattegat, says the British Air Ministry News Service.

The encounter took place approximately 150 miles from the Scottish coast. Without loss to themselves, the Mosquitos shot down nine of the aircraft in flames. Another German aircraft was damaged.

R.A.F. Coastal Command aircraft on Saturday night made attacks on a convoy going to Norway and a single ship in the Skagerrack, the Air Ministry News Service also announced.

Hits were claimed on a small merchant vessel, and a tanker in Larvik harbour was also hit. Crews were again helped by good weather and the light of the half moon.

Liechtenstein Closes Frontier

The Principality of Liechtenstein, between Switzerland and Austria, has closed its frontiers with Austria, said Swiss radio last night. Liechtenstein—constituted in 1719—has an area of 60 square miles, and is the smallest sovereign State in Europe.—(Reuter.)

Contact Lost With Berlin Minister

The Swedish Foreign Office announced yesterday that it had lost contact with its Berlin Minister, and it was believed he had "travelled." The Swedish Consulate-General in Hamburg is being closed.—(Associated Press.)

14th Army's Drive For Rangoon

The 14th Army troops' offensive towards Rangoon, the capital city of Burma, continues, and the Japanese are reposted to be withdrawing to join their main forces, states Reuter.

The Allied communiqué yesterday stated that Eastern Air Command planes bombed Japanese positions south and west of Pyin-Na-Na.

The Japanese recaptured ground from the 10th Army several times, and possession of it is still in doubt.

Northern Okinawa is now under American control. Infantry have completed the occupation of Ie Shima.

Between 100 and 150 Super-Fortresses yesterday carried out a second raid within 24 hours on Kyushu, the southernmost of the Japanese home islands, in which five airfields are located.

General Use Of Gaelic Urged

Mr. Gerald Boland, Minister for Justice, at a meeting in Castlebar to further the revival of the Irish language, said that a knowledge of the language would show people abroad that this country was a separate nation with its own language. A knowledge of Irish in the schools and the Civil Service was compulsory, but that was no use, unless the people as a whole encouraged it and made it the universal language of the nation.

Flags Stolen From Cenotaph

Two flags—a White Ensign and a Union Jack—were stolen from the Whitehall Cenotaph on Saturday night. They were ripped from their poles.

New flags were fitted to the poles early yesterday.

There's an unwelcome moment in nearly every man's life when someone says, 'You're going thin on top'. Why wait for that to happen? If there are hairs on the comb or signs of dandruff the sooner you act the better.

Some years back a great bio-chemist succeeded in isolating the 14 separate elements essential to hair growth. Silvikrin is the direct result of that discovery. It keeps the scalp nourished and the hair in strong, healthy growth.

SILVIKRIN LOTION for slight dandruff, falling hair, lank hair, weak hair—the perfect daily dressing that will keep the hair healthy and lustrous.

PURE SILVIKRIN for severe dandruff, serious falling hair, bald patches—threatening baldness. Grows new hair. From all chemists, hairdressers and stores.

SHEILA 16 O'CONNELL STREET-DUBLIN

without Calomel and you'll jump out of bed in the morning full of vim and vigour. The liver should pour out two pints of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk, and the world looks punk.

Laxative helps a little, but a mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pints of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 1/3 and 3/-.

We were married three weeks ago.

Among the many presents we received, two in particular fascinated us; one was a landscape by Humbert Craig and the other a Gift Token; both were from Arts, Ltd. (beside the Gresham Hotel). Last Saturday afternoon we went there and spent an enjoyable two hours—such a place—we had no idea it existed. We bought a lot of things which we thought were unobtainable these days, and they were not dear either; they included a Seven-piece fruit service for 15/- and a lovely original Water Colour for £4.4.0; a Keith Murray Wedgwood Bowl for 21/-; a Fleurart Mirror for 63/-; a lamp with a lovely shade for 59/6, and downstairs in the "Old World Corner" we fell for a charming Worcester figure for £5.5.0. We mean to make a Saturday afternoon visit to Arts a habit.

When your feet are swollen and tender, they need kind treatment. Soak them in a soothing Radox footbath. Then pain and swelling will vanish and leave your feet "feeling like new." From all chemists, price 1/6 and 2/6 a packet.

A RARE DISPLAY BY KNIGHT PALADIN

DISTEL and Knight Paladin, the winners of the two chief races at Naas on Saturday, were trained by Mr. Maxwell Arnott, doyen of National Hunt trainers, and ridden by his stable jockey, M. Gordon.

Miss Paget's Distel won the Novices' Hurdle, but it proved far from the cake-walk for him that his price of 3/1 on suggested it would be.

Bardic held a slight lead over the last hurdle, and Cool Customer jumped within three-quarters of a length of Distel. That was the nearest he ever came, though, and Distel, pushing his head past Bardic, promised to win comfortably. Bardic, however, fought back very gamely, and they passed the post almost—but not quite—locked together. Bardic had dead-heated with Free Trade a fortnight ago, and Distel, on Saturday, was giving him a year and 4lb.; that, for a four-year-old, was no mean performance.

Not a whit less praiseworthy was the display of Knight Paladin in the Champion Steeplechase. He started joint second favourite with Pongo. Pongo landed over the last just in front, but Knight Paladin, breasting the hill resolutely, outstayed him to win easily by three lengths. Brick Bat, on whom Morgan lost his irons at the last fence, was a further two lengths away, third.

Knight Paladin fully deserved the ovation he received when he returned to the unsaddling enclosure.

With him, Distel and and Happy Home, Mr. Arnott has swept the decks in the maiden events this year. They are three of the most promising novices we have had in this country for some time. It must also be said that Hamstar, who ran and jumped extremely well, should shortly win a maiden chase, while Pongo, making his first appearance over fences, fenced fluently throughout. The time for this race—4 mins. 5 1-5 secs. was very fast.

CLONTARF ERROR WHICH LOST THEM RUGBY CUP

Old Belvedere .. 12 Clontarf .. 10

Old Belvedere realised their ambition of beating Lansdowne's record of five successive wins in the Leinster Senior Rugby Cup when, on Saturday, they secured the trophy for the sixth year in succession, beating Clontarf in the final by two penalty goals and two tries (12 points) to two goals (10 points). One of the biggest attendances ever seen at Lansdowne road for a cup-final witnessed an exciting struggle in which Clontarf made a remarkable recovery from an apparently hopeless position.

The pattern of the game was strangely similar to many of Old Belvedere's cup-ties of previous years. At the first opportunity they struck a damaging blow with a long-range penalty goal; and, when they had their backs to the wall in the closing stages, their opponents infringed under their own posts, to concede another penalty kick, which decided the match.

What made the game one to remember, however, was Clontarf's fight back from what seemed likely to be a crushing defeat.

Following Thorpe's penalty goal, kicked from 40 yards out against the breeze, O'Sullivan and McNelis had tries, to put the holders nine points up after 20 minutes. Then they were awarded another penalty from quite a simple position, but the usually accurate Thorpe missed it, and that made a difference to the whole course of the game.

Clontarf seemed to be heartened by their escape, and an excellent try by Palcic from Mullan's well-placed cross-kick gave them the tonic they needed; and Mullan, by converting from the touch-line, put them within striking distance of their opponents.

Right at the start of the second half, Moran kicked towards touch from inside his own 25, and, with the Old Belvedere defence standing still expecting the ball to go out of play, they were completely caught by surprise when it bounced up into Palcic's hands. The wing had followed up very fast, and he went through to the opposing 25 before sending out to Moran, who gave Mullan a clear run for a try which the scorer converted.

Once again, Old Belvedere's fighting quality was seen when they were behind; but they were being closely marked, and it was only 15 minutes from the end when, after a grand forward rush, a Clontarf defender was penalised for obstructing in front of his posts, and Thorpe made no mistake this time. A furious Clontarf attack kept play on the Old Belvedere line for several minutes subsequently, but they were held out, and, eventually, Thorpe found touch at half-way. In the last few minutes the holders were able to maintain their lead comfortably.

To Thorpe must go the honours of the day; his first penalty goal was a match-winner, and his defence was a most valuable asset.

The Old Belvedere Rugby XV have been invited to the Belvedere Union Dance at the Gresham Hotel to-morrow night.

Munster Senior Cup final—Army 3 pts. (Curtin, penalty goal), Dolphin 3 pts. (Donovan try).

Cork Charity Cup final—Cork Constitution 13 pts., U.C.C. 3 pts. (after extra time).

No Cup-Tie Thrills In Rovers' Victory

SHAMROCK ROVERS ... 1 BOHEMIANS 0

BEFORE a record crowd of 37,348 (gate receipts, £2,240), Shamrock Rovers won the F.A.I. Cup for the tenth time at Dalymount Park yesterday, their success coming through a single goal, scored ten minutes after the interval.

As the play went, the winners deserved their success, for they provided most of the few touches of good football in a match which was almost devoid of thrills. At half-time it seemed quite likely to turn out a scoreless draw, for neither line of forwards looked to have sufficient thrust to score.

Rovers pressed hard almost continuously during the first half, in which play was much brighter than after the interval, but determined tackling by Molloy and Richardson, aided by good defensive work by the wing halves and backed by the soundness of Collins in goal, kept them at bay.

Coad and Rogers supplemented the work of Farrell and Doherty well as far as getting the ball within striking distance for Rovers went, but the finish of the whole line was faulty all through. Eglinton, in particular, failed to make the most of the fact that Glennon was the weak link in the amateurs' defence. The Bohemians' right back was very prone to mis-kick all through, and his positional play was faulty.

BOHEMIANS' WEAKNESS

Bohemians' forwards never recaptured the fire of their semi-final displays. Kelly, who kept going at full pace from start to finish, was the best of the line, and F. Morris, the youthful inside-left, played very clever football, but would have done better service often by lofting the ball into the goalmouth than by passing. K. O'Flanagan was well held in the main by Coyle, and M. O'Flanagan's failure to play well up the field lost a few promising chances. Byrne soon got the measure of Burns.

A switch between K. O'Flanagan and Burns after 25 minutes of the second half brought one move which nearly proved successful. Kelly, receiving from K. O'Flanagan, beat Coyle close in, and was about to shoot when Farrell took the ball off his toe. Beyond that, Rovers never seemed likely to lose their slender lead.

The whole Rovers defence was very sound, though Palmer was, perhaps, a shade lucky to succeed on each of several spectacular expeditions from his posts.

In one of Bohemians' sporadic raids before the interval, K. O'Flanagan showed a flash of his most dangerous shooting form, when he sent narrowly wide from 25 yards, with Palmer beaten.

Ten minutes after the restart Glennon brought the ball far up the field and lost possession. Before he could get back to aid the defence, the ball had travelled through Farrell and Rogers to Delaney, who put it square across, and Gregg, lying unmarked, scored with a shot which hit the inside of the upright, giving Collins no chance.

Football Stadium Required

MR. OSCAR TRAYNOR, Minister for Defence, speaking at the annual dinner of the Football Association of Ireland in Clery's Restaurant, Dublin, on Saturday night, said that, in view of the likelihood of the Olympic Games being held in Dublin, those interested should give the matter serious consideration. One of the major competitions at these Games was Association Football, a game encouraged by many nations. In this country, however, there was no arena which would house these international games, and members of the F.A.I. might consider worthy of attention the possibility of establishing a stadium to accommodate the vast number of people who would visit the country were the games to be held here. Even as it was more adequate accommodation was needed in their football enclosures.

Referring to the recent attacks made on Mr Traynor for his support of Association Football, Dr. W Hooper, President of the Association, said that the Gaels seemed to have overlooked the fact that while the F.A.I. and other association bodies had to pay their full assessment of income tax on profits made, the G.A.A. people were exempt from these taxes.

Other guests at the dinner were Mr. Sean MacEntee, Minister for Local Government and Public Health; Lieut.-General D. McKenna, Chief of Staff; Major-General Hugo McNeill; the Lord Mayor (Alderman M. O'Sullivan), and Mr. J. McBride (vice-chairman), Mr. James Small (secretary), and Mr. F. Corcoran (treasurer), representing the I.F.A.

DUBLIN STRING ORCHESTRA

Of outstanding interest at last night's concert by the Dublin String Orchestra, under Terry O'Connor, in the Aberdeen Hall, Gresham Hotel, Dublin, was the Serenade for tenor solo, horn and strings, by Benjamin Britten. Presented for the first time in Dublin, it has that original freshness of scoring and outlook which marks all Britten's work. The horn introduces the work by way of a prologue, which is followed by settings for tenor voice and orchestra of six poems, by such authors as Keats, Tennyson and Blake, the melodic line in each being in a sense a variant of the original theme. The work closes with a restatement of the horn theme as an epilogue.

The work presents great technical difficulties for both soloists, and it was immensely to their credit that Henry Wood, on the horn, and Robert McCullagh, tenor, carried their tasks so well. Miss O'Connor directed the work skilfully.

By contrast, the "Fantasia on a Theme of Tallis," by Vaughan Williams, sounded delightfully homely. The conductor brought out the rich beauty of the work, and there was some excellent solo work, notably by the viola.

The concerto for piano, trumpet and strings by Shostakovitch, a ten-year-old work, is perhaps, not of any great depth, but always holds the attention. There was not a dull moment in the piano part played by Kitty O'Callaghan, who displayed a brilliant technique and a glowing range of tone colour. Thomas McCurtin also was in his best form on the trumpet, and, the orchestra, under Miss O'Connor's commanding drive, gave the soloists fine support.

Handel's Concerto, Grosso in B minor, was also well played, the performance being marked by some rich chording.

Prospects for Irish Companies

By Our Financial Correspondent

THE opinion seems to be held by Irish investors that, however other countries may be affected by the war, industry in this country should not be so adversely affected, and that, with the end of the war, some Irish firms should do even better than they have done. In any event, the prevailing prices of certain local Industrials would appear to discount the future a long way ahead.

Dockrell's report, issued some weeks ago, showed a much improved financial position. Net profits rose from £5,462 to £9,345, and the Ordinary dividend was doubled at 4 per cent. Since then the Ordinary shares have been in keen demand. During the past few days small lots came on offer, and the shares jumped from 8s. 1½d. to 16s. buyers. During the pre-war years this concern had a lean time, but since then the earning capacity has steadily improved. Big building schemes are certain to be put into operation when conditions allow, and this company should benefit accordingly.

Last year Salts (Ireland), Ltd., was able to secure a bigger supply of raw materials. Advices regarding the current year's trading are also favourable, and in some quarters it is hoped that the Ordinary dividend will be raised from 5 to 6 per cent. These 5s. shares were recently bought up to 10s. 9d., and are regarded as a good speculative lock-up. It must be borne in mind, however, that, although the company was formed in 1937, no Ordinary dividend was paid until 1943.

Small selling of Clondalkin Paper Mills Ordinary shares has put the price back to 6s. 6d. Unlike most other Irish Industrial counters, they have not joined in the general upward swing. In 1940 the profits reached £25,051, and an Ordinary dividend of 10 per cent. was paid. Since then they have steadily declined until last year they were only £7,063. It is difficult to gauge how this company will fare when conditions become normal, for in the immediate pre-war years it was unable to pay any dividend. Yet, it must be remembered that the company was only formed in 1936, and could hardly be expected to get well established in that short period. When conditions allow, the dividend can be increased to 10 per cent.

Interest in Alliance Gas Ordinary units has dried up very considerably, and the price is inclined to slip back. It is yet too early to judge how the finances will benefit from the recent increase in the price of gas. In certain quarters the feeling is that it will only just cover the increasing costs of production. There seems little to go for in the near future, for much capital expenditure may be necessary on plant and machinery before holders can expect any increase in the dividend.

Banks Reducing Investments

THE London Stock Markets have shown to particular advantage in the last few weeks, and business has been reasonably brisk in most sections. Buying orders have outnumbered sales, but most of the buying is in comparatively small lines, which suggests operations by the average investor rather than the banks or investment trusts. No sign of any uncertainty has been seen prior to the Budget statement, which will be introduced to-morrow (Tuesday). Values for British Funds are hesitating at present high levels.

There has been evidence of the banks reducing investments in Gilt-edged stocks during the last four months. Over this period, total investments held by the London Clearing Banks have been reduced by £11,588,000, and further reduction during April is considered possible. On the other hand, holding of Treasury Deposit Receipts by the banks since the end of last November has increased by £14,500,000, while bills discounted are, roughly, £2,000,000 higher in the last four months. It would appear as if the banks are now financing the Treasury at the expense of investments.

Substantial reductions in the price of cement to the consumer is visualised by Mr. H. W. L. Reddish, Chairman and Managing Director of Rugby Portland Cement. In his speech to shareholders, he points out that the cement industry is in a position to average the cost of new works and new extensions with the written-down values of existing plants. In the five years before the war, obsolete plant, with an annual capacity of less than 125,000 tons was scrapped, while efficient modern plant was installed with an annual capacity of 2,250,000 tons. As a result, the industry was able to supply the cement needed for the war effort. This is also a factor which permits expectations of reduction in cement prices to the consumer when the post-war demand again enables the industry to reduce costs of production. In any calculations, however, the cost of coal and transport must produce strong influence.

The two companies concerned in the coming fusion of British Insulated Cables and Callender's Cables are about 50 years old, and have exceedingly fine records of dividends and bonuses. In this respect, however, they by no means stand alone. W. T. Henley's Telegraph Works Co., Ltd., for instance, was established 65 years ago with a capital of £180,000. To-day the capital is £1,500,000, of which Ord. stock accounts for £1,300,000. In addition to its cable business, its subsidiaries make motor tyres, golf balls, etc. Its Ord. stock is in 5s. units, quoted at 28s. 3d., at which the yield offered is £3 10s. p.c. Enfield Cable Works is another successful company, with an issued capital of £1,000,000. Twice in the past ten years capital bonuses have been distributed, one of 25 p.c., and another of 60 p.c. The last was in 1937, and, in the two following years, 16½ p.c. was paid. From then onwards, however, the distribution has been 12½ p.c. Its £1 stock units are quoted at 64s., to yield £3 18s. 1d. p.c.

Factors Behind Rise in Guinness

Two factors are believed to lie behind the protracted rise in Guinness £1 units, now 145s., says "Lex," writing in the Financial News. One is the expectation of profits from the plant which the company has purchased in the United States. The last balance-sheet showed an increase in subsidiaries of £300,000, due to the purchase of a Long Island business, which should help to expand the not inconsiderable pre-war export trade of Guinness to the United States. The other suggestion is that the company may wish to pay an additional bonus this year. The financial year ends at June 30th, and the interim dividend has already been maintained at 11 per cent. Last year's final was 13 per cent., accompanied by a bonus of 5 per cent. The yield at the current price is 4 per cent. In the halcyon days of 1936 the shares were over 161s.

GLOOMY POST-WAR OUTLOOK

Speaking of post-war problems, the outgoing Chairman of the Association of Officers of the Employment Branch, Department of Industry and Commerce, told delegates at the annual meeting in Dublin on Saturday that there would probably be a very considerable increase in unemployment in the country. That, taken with the loss of millions of pounds which were now being received from workers in Great Britain, made an outlook that was anything but bright. Post-war social problems would need vigorous and tactful handling and co-ordination of our social services, and it was not inconceivable that the implementation of the decisions of the Government in some of these matters would fall to the lot of the Employment Branch, particularly when it was recollected how smoothly and efficiently the administration of previous social Acts was carried into effect. "We would willingly place our knowledge and experience at the service of the Department," he said.

WORK AND FINANCE

During five turbulent years Mr. Sean T. O'Kelly has had to face many elusive problems in the field of public finance. To-day, as he waits for revelations of policy in Great Britain and elsewhere, and prepares to pass the reins of office to other hands, he is confronted with problems of unprecedented urgency and complexity. In certain respects these problems are peculiar to this country. While the Finance Ministers of other lands are constrained to seek new sources of revenue with which to meet vast outlays for works of reconstruction, Mr. O'Kelly finds himself in the apparently happy position of possessing a "paper" surplus of money assets. External investments that were estimated at somewhere about £300,000,000 five years ago have risen since then by more than £100,000,000. Unfortunately, there is another side to the account. While assets have increased in nominal value, their real value has diminished seriously; and there is the further difficulty that many years may have to pass before money assets can be converted into a surplus of this country's capital imports over its exports of agricultural and other produce. When these, and other, possible factors of adversity are taken into account, it would be foolish in the last degree to expect that Mr. O'Kelly, or his successor, will be able to forecast early prosperity, or continuing conditions of "easy money," for traders and taxpayers. There is, indeed, a prospect that many vicissitudes—some already discernible and others unpredictable—will have to be encountered while this country slowly adapts itself to the framework of a new social and economic order over the world at large.

Nevertheless, there are exigent problems whose solutions will not brook delay. Already there are signs that the tide of emigration has begun to ebb. With the slowing down of war industries in Great Britain and elsewhere, the emergency demand for unskilled labour tends to slacken, and emigrants have begun to drift "back to the land," or to seek other forms of home employment while the going seems to be good. Despite all prospects or promises of continued employment on works of post-war reconstruction, there can be little doubt that the homeward tide will continue to flow and to increase in volume. While estimates of emigration during the past five years differ, such information as can be obtained seems to indicate that not fewer than a quarter of a million of the country's citizens have drifted into varied war employments and other external activities. This estimate means that more than one-sixth of our population between the ages of 18 and 50 soon may have to seek for employment at home or abroad. Further, it is reasonable to assume that the great majority of those who emigrated were among the most virile and enterprising members of the community. Now, the problems that face Mr. O'Kelly and his colleagues are: First, how many of these emigrants are likely to return during the coming twelve months? Secondly, what will be their average standard of competence? Thirdly, if, say, 100,000 decide to return, how are they to be employed during the transition years that must elapse while industries are being reorganised, new industries developed and public utility undertakings planned and put into effective force? How, finally, can any plans to provide transitional employment—which necessarily must be in the nature of emergency relief measures, and, therefore, not strictly "economic"—be integrated with plans for "social security" and for long-term industrial development.

It may be said that such questions travel far beyond the sphere of budget finance, as it has been regarded hitherto. They involve issues of high policy for which every member of the Government, and every legislator, must accept his full share of responsibility. Moreover, the leaders of commerce and industry, and of organised labour, cannot divest themselves of responsibility for policies and programmes that constitute the framework to which the Department of Finance must conform its proposals for taxation and expenditure. Nevertheless, very special responsibilities rest on the shoulders of the Minister for Finance and his expert advisers. Never, as we believe, were such responsibilities so great as they are at the present juncture. Faced by urgent demands for relief wages, for housing and other costly social services, for trade subsidies, and for various branches of post-war reforms, the Minister must have resort to one of two methods of finance. He may take the risk of placing too heavy burdens on the shoulders of private enterprise, and may decide to increase the already excessive rates of general taxation. Alternatively, he may adopt the principle of long-term "economic," as distinguished from orthodox, balancing of national accounts. In other words, he may increase the sum of public debt, in the hope and belief that present expenditure will help to broaden the back of taxpayers to bear heavier burdens in coming years. Arguments in support of either method seem to be convincing until the case for the other is heard. As we believe, further additions to public debt can be justified on one condition. That condition is that investments of public capital shall be "regenerative" in their results. Whether such investments are derived from the repatriation of external money assets, or from future accumulations of domestic savings, all temptation to provide "easy money" for sectional interests must be resisted sternly if the sum of national wealth is not to be dissipated in unproductive adventures. The only safeguard against such possibilities of waste lies in the pursuit of a balanced policy and programme, ready to be put into force during years of transition. Hastily - contrived plans to meet recurring emergencies can lead only to social and economic chaos. If the Government has plans ready to meet such contingencies, let us hope that Mr. O'Kelly will take occasion to let us know what they are.

British Coal

The future of the coal-mining industry, which has been very much under discussion of late, is a matter of concern to Ireland as well as to Great Britain; for, whatever the development of our native resources of turf may be, it seems certain that we must continue for an indefinite period to depend upon Britain for our very necessary supplies of coal. A committee of experts set up by the British Ministry of Fuel and Power now has made its report, which confirms the impression that great reforms must take place in the industry before it can attain the desired peak of efficiency. In the first place, it appears that British pits are far too little mechanised. There is small point, apparently, in improving methods of winning the coal at the coal-face unless the system of transport from the face to the shaft is improved radically; for loss of efficiency in production seems to be due to a very great extent to antiquated methods of underground transport. At the same time, it is necessary to reorganise the actual lay-out of the pits, in order that coal may be brought always to the nearest shaft, and that artificial divisions may not be raised. In other words, it is recommended that the pits shall be organised on a regional basis. How far the proper enforcement of such recommendations will differ from wholesale nationalisation of the mines it is difficult to say; but, even if that final step must be taken, the industry cannot afford to work at less than maximum efficiency. It is clear that, after the war, the miner will not forget his importance to Britain's national economy, and that he will demand wages proportionate to the arduous character and the danger of his work. If this general call for an increase is to be met, without a substantial increase in the price of coal to the consumer, it is essential that the highest possible production per man-hour shall be achieved. One must hope that the result will be achieved by way of compromise, rather than of war, between producer and consumer.

FILM NOTES

By Our Cinema Correspondent

An American Romance (Theatre Royal) is lengthy record of the adventures of a Swede who went to America towards the close of the century, made a fortune and helped to win two wars. Its effectiveness is a little marred by prosy passages in which the glorious advantages of being American are heavily stressed; but, to compensate for these banalities, there are superbly photographed sequences showing steel mills in action, motor-car assemblage and mass aeroplane production. Brian Donlevy plays the Swedish innocent abroad with restraint and sincerity, and Ann Richards is picturesque as his American wife. King Vidor's direction is at all times intelligent, and, in some sequences, brilliant. The technicolour varies from the beautiful to the strident.

This is the Life (Carlton), based on a play by Sinclair Lewis and Fay Wray, is the best Donald O'Connor-Peggy Ryan musical since "Mr. Big." The plot is unoriginal; but the incidental clowning, singing and dancing are of a high order. Miss Susanna Foster, whose acting is rapidly improving, is on hand to sing "With a Song in my Heart" and "Toujours l'Amour," and the older generation is represented by Patric Knowles and Louise Allbritton. Donald O'Connor is still the main attraction, however, and his irreproachable timing and comedy sense are a delight. If Universal continue to provide him with reasonably good material, it should be many years before his starlight wanes.

Lost in a Harem (Adelphi) is an adequate excuse for involving Abbott and Costello with sheiks, camels and crystal-gazers. Even for farce, it is very loosely constructed; but Lou Costello's ludicrous personality has often triumphed over cruder stuff than this. Some of the "gags" show signs of wear; a few are striking in their originality. The supporting film, Find the Blackmailer, is a thoroughly enjoyable, fast-moving thriller.

The Invisible Man's Revenge (Capitol) has remarkably little to commend it. Based insecurely on H. G. Wells's original conception, this elaboration is besmirched with bogus English atmosphere, a fatuous screen play and indifferent acting. The trick photography fails to impress when one compares it with the camera work in the original, and the picture's numerous defects makes the actors' obvious lack of interest in it comprehensible and natural.

Maytime (Savoy) might well be regarded as the "corniest" film of all time, wreathed as it is in apple blossom, lavender, love and lace. Nevertheless, it has a very definite and a very lasting appeal, and it must be said that Jeanette MacDonald, for all her heavily coy ingenuousness, gives a memorable performance as the prima donna who married her tutor, but loved a Bohemian baritone. The B.b. in question is, of course, Nelson Eddy, who has put on a good deal of weight since this film was made. Also on the programme is an M.-G.-M. two-reel adaptation of Edgar Allan Poe's The Tell-tale Heart. Not all Joseph Schildkraut's careful playing or Jules Dassin's macabre direction can disguise the fact that Poe builds up his horrible effects in the phraseology of his descriptive passages; not in his dialogue.

21 Days (Astor), made some years ago in Britain by Columbia, is a revised version of Galsworthy's most impressive short story, "The First and the Last." Columbia's new ending, devised by Messrs. Basil Dean and Graham Greene, will annoy those who like their screen stories to "keep to the book," but it will mollify those who like their melodrama "unstarked" at the fade-out. There is admirable acting by Leslie Banks, Hay Petrie, Francis L. Sullivan and Mr. and Mrs Laurence Olivier.

Eyes in the Night (Grafton) gave Edward Arnold his best part as a blind detective, whose intelligent dog helped him to solve an ingeniously-constructed mystery.

OBITUARY

SIR C. NIXON, BART.

The death of Major Sir Christopher Nixon, Bart., D.L., D.S.O., Hollybrooke, Bray, occurred at a Dublin nursing home on Saturday last. He was a former chairman and managing director of Messrs. Clery and Co., Dublin.

Born in 1877 at Merrion square, Dublin, Sir Christopher was the only surviving son of Sir Christopher John Nixon, the first baronet, whom he succeeded in 1914. He was educated at Beaumont, Windsor; the old Royal University and Dublin University, where he took an M.A. degree with honours. He studied law at King's Inns before being called to the Bar, but did not practise. In 1900 he joined the British Army, became captain in 1909, and, five years later, major. He served in the 1914-18 war—where, incidentally, he took part in Allenby's advance—and was awarded the D.S.O. in 1918. He was a member of the Dun Laoghaire and Woodbrook Golf Clubs, was a cup-holder for squash-rackets, and had won many prizes for other sports.

Sir Christopher is survived by his wife, three sons and a daughter. Mr. Christopher Nixon is the heir.

MR. T. BUCKLEY

The death took place on Saturday last, at his house in Gougane Barra, Co. Cork, of Mr. Timothy Buckley, famous as "the Tailor" of Mr. Eric Cross's book, "The Tailor and Ansty," which was banned by the Censorship Board shortly after its publication in 1942, and was later the subject of a debate in the Senate.

MR. JOHN KELLY

Mr. John Kelly, Strabane, who has died at his residence, Kennedy street, was for the past forty years a member of Strabane Urban Council, and for many years Vice-Chairman of the Council. He was actively associated with the Labour movement, of which he was an organiser. He was also active in every movement pertaining to Catholic and Nationalist life.

SAILORS' REST, NORTH WALL

At the annual general meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary, Dublin Sailors' Rest, held in the Church Hall, Ormond quay and Scots' Church, Abbey street, on Friday, Mrs. Lloyd-Jones, Hon. Secretary, and Mrs. Ritchie, Hon. Treasurer, submitted reports. The Rev. J. S. Crockett, M.A., and Mr. Bowie, Port Missionary, spoke of the great assistance which was being rendered to the Rest by the Ladies' Auxiliary. The President of the Auxiliary, Mrs. Bole, thanked the members for their loyal support during the year, which had been the most successful in their history. In tendering her resignation on her departure to reside in Northern Ireland, she welcomed Mrs. Crockett as her successor in office.

Mr. C. Stewart, Mr. J. Hubbard Clark and Professor Lloyd-Jones also spoke in appreciation of Mrs. Bole's work as President of the Auxiliary, and expressed the good wishes of the meeting to her and the Rev. J. Bole. Mrs. Crockett presented on behalf of the Auxiliary a handbag to Mrs. Bole. There were also present the Rev. S. J. Park and the Rev. Pastor Deens.

DISTRESSED LADIES' FUND

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Irish Distressed Ladies' Fund at 6 Merrion square, Dublin, the expenditure of £185 9/4 was authorised to assist necessitous cases for the remainder of April and for May. The Earl of Wicklow presided, and Miss Kenny, Mrs. G. Stewart, Mrs. Clements, Lady de Freyne, Mr. Cyril H. Dickinson, Major Guillamore O'Grady and Mr. W. F. Coombes (Secretary) were also present.

Cruiskeen Lawn

By Myles na gCopaleen

LISTEN to this:

'He is modest. He spent most of his first 33 years on his father's farm. With the ingrained habits of a farm boy, he still rises early. He married his boyhood sweetheart. He is honest, healthy, simple, kindly, straightforward, with a pleasant sense of humour. As his fame grew, so did his self-confidence. He did not hesitate to lay blame on the highest quarters. . .'

As accurate a little portrait of myself as you will find, yet these words were written about the man who is now President of the United States. Since then both of us rejoice in identical experiences and endowments, there will be ready speculation as to why he and not I was elevated to the high office mentioned. It is, of course, a long story, full of technicalities too laborious to explain. I am, perhaps, slow to speak on my own behalf, it may be that the modesty common to us both bath in my case a more particular flower. I have no regrets. To President Truman I offer whole-hearted loyalty.

There is however another matter not dissimilar which I make bold to raise. Shortly the Irish nation will itself have to find a new President. If I am fitted—as nobody can deny I am—to be President of the United States, how is it that I am not the immediate choice for your white house in the Park? You say I am not Irish? That is a mere quibble. If I am not an Irishman, I am at least a good Irish nationalman, which is the same thing. President Truman has declared that he is Scotch, Irish and Dutch—and that was never thrown in his face. You have a President Farrell ruling over the Spaniards in the Argentine and a Mr. de Valera as Premier of Northern Ireland. By all means have this stupid racial exclusiveness but let it apply to everybody. Do not start making new rules when I appear on the scene, of all places.

The foregoing is not to say that I would accept the post of President here if the same were offered to me. Apart from the fact that living in the middle of all that turf would not appeal to me, the forthcoming 'election' will be very misconceived. Your Constitution (now dumbly awaiting my inexorable analysis which will probably prove that the whole Presidency is illegal) blandly states that every citizen over 36 years of age shall be eligible for election to that office. This reminds one of the remark made by a distinguished English jurist about the equableness of the law. "The law courts," he said, "are open to everybody, like the Ritz." Observers estimate that a 'campaign' will cost each modest candidate for preferment not less than £15,000. Therefore, apart from being over 36, it is also necessary to be rich. I personally cannot see why anybody who already owns £15,000 is not completely content, notwithstanding the statement (never heard from paupers) that "money isn't everything." That is as big a lie as the other lie that the people elect the President. They do nothing of the kind. They are permitted, at great cost to themselves, to ballot on a set of names placed before them. Worse, they must take one or other of the candidates, even if the majority of the electorate is convinced that the election of any of the candidates would be calamitous. This then is your vaunted democracy. In the revised Constitution which I will in due course ask you to take and to dedicate unto yourselves, it will be provided that wealthy fellows will be excluded from candidature by means test and further, electors will be entitled to put an X opposite a panel which says I AM CONVINCED THAT THE ELECTION OF ANY ONE OF THE FOREGOING CANDIDATES WOULD BE THE END OF OUR LAND. After about twenty abortive elections, the nominating caucuses may see the wisdom of arranging a walk-over. For one who, though poor, is a gentleman and honest as the day is long.

ART EXHIBITION

Mr. Louis Le Brocquy's exhibition of sketches and studies, which opened yesterday at his studio, 13 Merrion row, consists of about 90 small pictures. Some of them are of high quality. This gift of quality is rare, but of importance; any work of art must have it, whether it be a picture, a poem, a piece of music or a piece of prose. We get it particularly in Mr. Le Brocquy's figure studies, such as "Figures in Moonlight," "Adam and Eve and the Book," and "Classic Theme III," which is in many ways preferable to the big picture shown at the Living Art Exhibition, for which this drawing was a study. It is also in the landscapes, "Liffey Bridge" and "Dodder Weir."

At heart Mr. Le Brocquy is a romantic—look at the sky in "Figures in Moonlight"—a romantic who has been influenced by Continental painting and by the Chinese. He has the delicacy of the Orientals and, in his figures, the realism of the modern painters, yet underneath lies a firm structure. His constant search is for beauty, whether it be in the abstraction of "Night Fall" or "Bog Stones," or in the more realistic "Gathering Kelp." Sensitive and, at times, fugitive—too much so, perhaps—he has been attracted to many themes, some of which are dealt with more fully than others. But in everything he does he is a master of his technique, and this exhibition is one of the most interesting we have seen.

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Man With a Leg

THE right leg of a young gentleman by the name of D. Thorpe created a considerable disturbance at Lansdowne road on Saturday afternoon, where it kicked around a ball that was being used by Old Belvedere and Clontarf, to settle the final of the Leinster Senior Rugby Cup. This right leg of D. Thorpe's would not be out of place beneath a billiard table.

Thorpe, a stocky youth with pale yellow hair, plays scrum-half for Old Belvedere. Soon after the match opened Belvedere were awarded a penalty, a few sparse yards inside Clontarf's half of the field. Thorpe got his leg ready, drew it back, and kicked a goal, half the length of the field, into a steady headwind.

Splendid as this achievement was, it was outshone by a later performance of the leg which undoubtedly won the match for Belvedere, and the record of six successive wins.

With the score standing at 12 to 10 in Belvedere's favour, Clontarf were fighting with great savagery on Belvedere's very line. Frequent scrums were edging Belvedere back foot by foot. Suddenly, the ball trickled out to Thorpe. Thorpe picked it up, waggled the leg, and with the leg found touch down near the half-way mark. It was the end of the match. Clontarf, exhausted and disappointed, were finished. Their bolt was shot.

Stretcher Bearers!

Even outside Thorpe's leg, it was a magnificently thrilling match. It was a good match not to be playing in, too. On no less than sixteen separate occasions players were left lying on the ground, apparently ready for lilies.

Just before the end, a wild rush by Clontarf left three Belvedere men not only prostrate, but hopelessly tangled up with one another. The St. John Ambulance attendants had to sort out the limbs, before giving them treatment.

One of the worst sufferers was Otto Palsic, the Clontarf right-wing. Some form of violence was applied to his head. He staggered about for a considerable time, holding it tenderly, until the ambulance men rounded him up and stretched him on the touchline, under blankets. He returned shortly afterwards, put in some work, and suddenly collapsed again—this time without any fresh assault being committed upon him. He came back, finally, to play a great game.

Most of the injuries seemed to come from the very hard ground. It was really hard, with clouds of dust blowing off it.

Outsiders Ahead

Before the match started, the fanciful odds of forty to one were being offered against Clontarf. Quite a lot of minor threepenny stuff was being done at the rate of seven and eight to one. It seemed to be a foregone conclusion. But, at one time, Clontarf, the rank outsiders, were actually leading by a point.

This unforeseen development brought the enormous audience to its feet. It was like an International. During the long minutes while Clontarf was bedded down on the Belvedere line you couldn't even hear yourself shouting on the stands. Then Thorpe got his leg out, and found that gigantic touch, and suddenly the whole match fizzled out. In the last ten minutes many of the forwards on both sides were scarcely able to walk. In one loose scrimmage they kicked the ball about idly among themselves, devoid of any idea about what to do with it.

When the final whistle went, the crowds poured on to the field. Thorpe started to walk towards the dressing-rooms, and all at once the massive right leg collapsed. He couldn't move. Two Clontarf men appeared. They carried him in. It was a most agreeable climax.

Academy

The one hundred and sixteenth exhibition of pictures garnered by the Royal Hibernian Academy of Arts opens to-day. By four o'clock this afternoon the pictures should be safely concealed by the guests, if you were thinking of going.

The most curious thing about the Royal Hibernian Academy is the fact that everybody takes one look at it, starts back, and says: "Why, this is even worse than last year!" Many of them were not there last year, but heard about it.

Chat will be fairly easy at the present exhibition. There are two portraits of Dr. Douglas Hyde—one by Sean O'Sullivan, the other by Leo Whelan. They face each other, from opposite sides of the room. The Whelan portrait is formal, statesmanlike; the O'Sullivan one more humorous and kindly. There is going to be a vast quantity of conversation on the subject of these two pictures. And there'll be a shocking row if I hear anybody else saying that the Whelan portrait is formal and statesmanlike, and the O'Sullivan one more humorous and kindly. That's mine. You think of your own.

New Pastor

The Reverend William Thomas, who was born in Waterford, and there educated at Tate's School, has recently been made pastor of St. Paul's Union Church, in Chicago. Although Mr. Thomas is a Presbyterian, he becomes by his new appointment pastor over a church of no fewer than sixteen different denominations.

For the installation ceremony, the church printed a booklet, setting forth the many different kinds of celebrations that would be held. One of these celebrations is entitled: "The Reception: Church Parlour: Monday evening, January 8th, 1945."

There follows a list of the more distinguished guests who gathered to welcome Mr. Thomas. An extract from it will interest Mr. Thomas's many friends in Waterford.

Everybody Present

At the head of the list comes Mr. Chas. E. Holcomb, President, Board of Trustees. He is followed by representatives of the Cradle Roll Class; the Home Department; the Missionary Council; the Church Choir; the Women's Council; the Women's League; the Beverly Guild; the Red Cross Unit; the Sunday Evening Club; the Men's Bowling League; the Director of Young People; the Aristonians' Society; the Young People's Society; the Tuxis Society; the Junior Endeavour; Troop No. 608, Boy Scouts of America; Brownie Troop No. 375; Troop No. 292, Girl Scouts of America; The Tatapochon Campfire Group; and, finally, the Ickoyaka Campfire Group.

LONDON LETTER

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON.

SUNDAY NIGHT.

MR. Paul Vincent Carroll has temporarily forsaken Glasgow and has come to London to write film scenarios at Elstree. He expects to stay South for some months. Recently he completed one scenario for a British picture, and his advice is being sought in the selection of scripts sent in by other writers. His last play, "The Wise Have Not Spoken," was a success at the Glasgow Citizens' Theatre, of which he and Mr. James Bridie are among the directors. Mr. Carroll is still contributing his weekly article on current affairs to a Glasgow newspaper, and is not losing touch with Scottish problems.

Typhus Epidemic

After referring to the pandemic of the first magnitude, which struck the world after the last war, Mr. Knud Stowman, chief of the Epidemiological Information Service of U.N.R.R.A., says, in a report on the epidemic outlook of Europe, issued to-day, that, with the world war entering its final stages, conditions propitious to the propagation of epidemics are likely to grow worse during the current year. He thinks that only louse - borne typhus presents an immediate and grave danger to Europe. In certain districts severe typhus epidemics are already under way, and in much larger areas the danger is potential for several years. The typhus-free area of Europe now consists only of Finland, Switzerland and the three Scandinavian countries, and, apart from relatively rare sporadic cases, the Netherlands, Belgium and France.

Irish Labour

Tribute to the efficiency of Irish labour was paid by Mr. E. de M. Kippax at the monthly meeting of Wells (Somerset) City Council. When the question of help for the surveyor's department was under discussion, Mr. Kippax said that the only reason why Irish labour had not been considered hitherto was because their basic wage would be £4 5s. to £4 10s. a week and it was felt that complications over wages would arise with the permanent workmen.
